

Making your New Technologies Blog

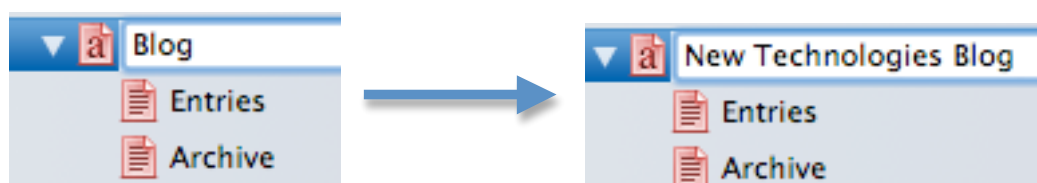

- Open iWeb and add a blog page to your site:

- Under your Site menu, you will notice the following additions:

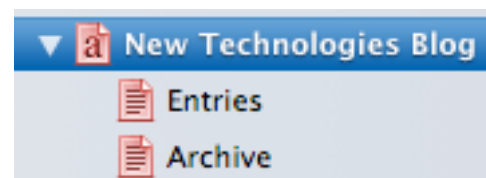

- Blog page (highlighted above)
 - This is the visible layout of your blog
 - It contains a region for your Entries and a link to your Archive
 - You edit the look of your blog here, but do not make actual entries.
 - Entries page
 - You must have this page selected to create new (or edit old) entries. You do not edit entries on the Blog page.
 - Archive
 - You do not need to edit the Archive. It will work by itself. When you have many entries, older ones will only be accessible to your readers through the Archive link.
- Rename your Blog page by single-clicking the word Blog and typing the new name in:

- Edit your Blog page:

- Make sure your Blog page is selected:

- Edit only the top portion of the blog page. Do not delete the Archive link; or the Entries area.

Replace the Picture with a Picture related to New Technology

Change the title; and add an introductory message as below

- The title must be: New Technologies Blog
- The message must welcome the reader to the blog and explain what types of articles the reader will find. For example:

“Welcome to my New Technologies Blog. Entries in this blog will be about new technologies that I hope you find as interesting and exciting as I do. Each entry will show a picture of the new technology; will explain what it is used for; will give an indication of its cost; and will tell who created the new technology.”

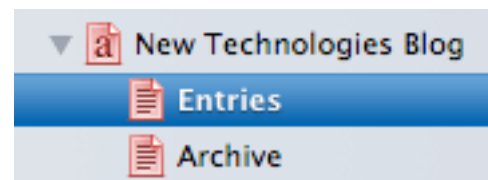

➤ Add your first entry

- Search online for an interesting new technology. You may use the websites listed under Links on our website:

- In iWeb

- Select the Entries Page

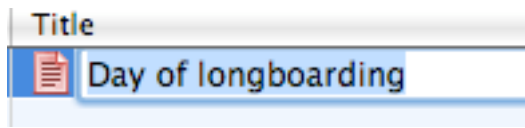

- iWeb gives you a first entry to modify. For future entries you will have to click the Add Entry button to begin.
